

A Voice from New Jersey—Guthrie for the Presidency.

of the 28th ult., (a staunch national Democrat journal) we find the following excellent and forcible article in reference to the mention of the name of Hon. James Guthrie in connection with the next Presidency. It will afford the friends of the dis-

Rightly called the "Century," much pleasure has been derived from its pages in the regard and confidence of the Democracy itself, where:

We are right glad to notice that this distinguished gentleman has been elected to the editorship of the Democratic journals in various parts of the country.

In looking over the field many months ago, at a remote and peculiar position of the Democracy throughout the Union, the many vexed questions that had intruded themselves upon our minds, and the many evils that had marred the harmony of our organization, it appeared very clear to our mind that the delegates to the Chicago Convention, if they were to be successful in the approaching Presidential struggle, must seek outside the ranks of life-long politicians and party men, and must be drawn from the ranks of those mixed up in the party strifes of the last few years as leaders, stand all on one side or the other of the question, and thus locate the cause internal dissensions have drawn through our midst. A nomination of any of these prominent men would be a confession of weakness and active opposition, or lukewarmness and apathy in some portion of our ranks. Harmony and unanimity would be impossible, and we shall go into the contest at the outset with all that waste of energy and zeal which is the inevitable result of locating the cause harbinger of a most disastrous defeat.

Now what we want in such an emergency as this is not a man, but a man of action, and if they shall be a guaranty for his political devotion and

Now, in James Guthrie, of Kentucky, the Democracy have, we conceive, the very max for this country. He is a man of the highest moral and political character, and has the warmest and most genuine regard of one of his admirers—"James Guthrie is a strong, practical and resolute man, with the heart of a lion, and the head of a Hercules," says the Herald. He is just the man for the times. There is nothing to prevent the North and the South from coming to a compromise, if James Guthrie furnishes a sure guaranty that, if trusted by both, neither could be betrayed or even disappointed. He is a man of honor, and would never betray the large confidence of his friends in whatever he

Here we have a glowing tribute from one who has known him long, and has had opportunities to observe him in the most trying and severe ordeals by which the loftiest qualities of statesmanship can be tested. But independent of the glowing eulogium which he has uttered on a wider field than that of Kentucky, there is much significance and weight in that closing sentence, "high merit and high position," which we carry us back to the earlier and better days of the Republic. It is just such a man as is intended in this tribute, and it is just such a man as is loudly for the elevation of such men to high official positions.

The only other man of this type who ever held the office of Governor of this State was that of Secretary of the Treasury, to which he was called by General Pierce, in a first high and distinguished position, and in which he was successful in all parties. It was the universal tribute that no man ever discharged its duties with more signal success.

It is a tribute to the man who has been our commercial centres than Mr. Guthrie. His reports are remarkable for their plain, practical and business-like character, and for the clear history and resources of the country, wonderful even in the midst of the most complicated details; and for the plain, practical and business-like style.

They certainly have never been surpassed in these characteristics by any other President. There is no question that this distinguished man possesses in a most eminent degree all the practical elements of greatness. He is a man of the highest character. In his firmness, indomitable industry and energy, his compressed and animated by the most devoted and patriotic spirit, he is the very embodiment of the noblest and noblest of the people. General Jackson in the hearts of the people of this country, and in the hearts of the people of the world, he has been elevated to the Presidency, as successful, and as popular an administration as that of the old Hero. His administration would call forth the universal tribute from the men of all parties, that the office of President of the United States is a high and noble one. We believe him to be a "first-rate" man, first-rate in ability—first-rate in dignity of character—first-rate in the purity of his motives, first-rate in integrity, and first-rate in purity of constitutional principles, according to the rule laid down the result of his practical joke entering. When the embarrassing incident of the anti-Indian bill, was quite unexpected to those not au fait with Indian dances—the yah-yahs of the legislature, who were laughing at the bill, lay above the who-whos and you-yous of the copper-copper brothers.—Washington Star.

SAN CARLETO.—TWO MEN KILLED.—On the instant, at a log-rolling at James Graves', 1034 south-west of this place, a man, who was standing on the stump of a small chestnut tree some five feet high, and a log with hand-axes, falling of the tree was occasioned by a sudden gust of wind and the man, who was leaning over the trunk of the tree, was struck on the head, and the hand-axe, which he was holding, struck his head, and he fell to the ground. The second hand-axe, which was thrown, broke his neck—and he died. The man who was standing on the stump of the tree, was struck on the head, and he fell to the ground, and he died. At Lezbonn, on the last day of the carnival, a person disguised as the Emperor of France, walked down the streets with a velvet canopy over his head which were inscribed with "The Treaties of 1915." At every few steps he would stop and utter some terse phrase inimic Empire, scattering it to the ground in masses. After some time, however, the Emperor took back the canopy and the velvet was interfered and put an end to the representation.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE NEW YORK.

New York, April 5.—The steamship New York,

from Southampton with dates to the 2nd ult.,

has arrived.

It has been determined to hold a Peace Congress for the purpose of discussing the Italian affairs.

A large number of workmen had been held in Hyde Park to oppose the ministerial reform bill.

The Neapolitan exiles had gathered at the quays in the vicinity of the landing.

The British correspondents of the London Press states that the Emperor, having been informed of the ultimate regulations of Austria, now desires to be prepared for the worst.

Another letter says that Austria and France appear more inclined towards a pacific solution of the Italian affairs. It is certain that the Austrian force in Lombardy is more imposing

than was supposed. The Vienna correspondence

states that the Emperor is determined to be prepared for the worst.

Telegraphic dispatches from Paris say that the powers have agreed to the assembling of a European Congress, but the basis and extent of the discussion are not settled. Hague, London and Berlin are mentioned as likely places for this Congress.

The Austrian papers caution their readers against too much confidence in the peaceful result of the Italian affairs. It is certain that the

Austrian force in Lombardy is more imposing

than was supposed. The Vienna correspondence

states that the Emperor is determined to be prepared for the worst.

Consul to Nicaragua.

PHILADELPHIA, April 5.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Herald says, that Rundell, the newly appointed Consul at San Juan del Sur, Nicaragua, left here to-day, with dispatches to the Government of Nicaragua.

These dispatches are understood to be, as stated yesterday, of a peremptory character, and will show to the Government of Nicaragua that the United States will no longer submit to the double dealing policy. If Sir William Gore Ouseley has been weak enough, as it is feared, to yield to the influence of the British Consul in Nicaragua, and exceeded his instructions, he will proceed to resign, and the United States will be prepared to support him.

Great activity prevails in our Navy yards in view of the imminent departure of the British Consul, and the Navy Department is endeavoring to have the necessary repairs completed in time for the departure of the British Consul.
